

Modern Masterpiece

FRAUGHT WITH OUTDATED finishes, inadequate functionality, and uninspiring features, this home's original kitchen was certainly due for an update when the owners hired Haskell Matheny, ASID, NCIDQ Certified; Sheila Stubbs; and Lezli Morris of Haskell Interiors. Desiring a minimalist milieu that reflected their love for modern art, the owners tasked the design trio with creating a clean, uncluttered space that looked like a pure extension of the rest of the home.

Demolishing down to the studs before building anew, the designers added skylight tubes and a tray ceiling with LED lighting to illuminate the space and eliminate the low ceiling. Aglow below the new light sources is the same Turkish marble tile seen throughout the home. True to the couple's contemporary style, the designer's selected high-gloss white cabinetry for the perimeter and island, further brightening the room. A back wall of rosewood cabinetry with stunning striations helps draw your eye into the room.

A sleek marble and steel backsplash, silver-leaf tile for the bar wall, and handmade Italian glass hardware provide artful touches throughout the design. The real masterpiece of the new kitchen, however, is the custom glass top for the island. With brush strokes of cobalt, red, and amber—the same color palette used in art around the house—the practical glass top is elevated to art in its own right and serves as the focal point in this modern remodel. «
